

OH, BABY!

Inspired by watching my Grandmother making latkes in the kitchen.

Objective:

See how well you know your friends and family! Guess the baby picture to the right person and win fun prizes!

Items:

- A large piece of paper (A1 or 2)
- Baby pictures from everyone playing the game
 - Blue tack
- A basket of random things (e.g toys, - glue stick, baking soda, towel ...)
- A large bowl of any type of candy
 - A black sharpie

Setup:

Before your party, tack the photos to the large piece of card/bulletin board, face side down. Using your sharpie, number every photo. Get your basket of random things and your bowl of candy and put it in the middle of your table.

Game Play:

Split the players into two groups and number each person in the group (e.g if you have 12 photos, split the groups into 6 people in each. Divide up the numbers between the group members, so each person in the group would receive two numbers). Ask someone from the first group to come and pick the photo with their number on it, when they pick the photo they have to guess who the baby is. If they can't guess or guess incorrectly it goes to the other person in the other group with the same number. If no one can guess it, it goes back on the board. Play until there are no photos left on the board. Once you are done go to your random basket (make sure that there is one thing for everyone) tell everyone to look through your basket and choose one thing that connects to the baby photo they're holding (e.g a mirror connects to someone who is pretty). Go around the table and everyone should say their connection to the photo they are holding and give them a Chanukah present from the basket of candy.
